

FLOATING TRICKSTERS

THE FAERIE
VILLAGES OF CENTRAL PARK

LOG LINE

One of the oldest questions humans ask themselves is whether invisible helpers guide them during their hours of need.

OVERVIEW

There are ten faerie villages hidden throughout Central Park. The inhabitants of these villages are tasked with guiding and inspiring the humans who live in Manhattan. These faeries live in a structured society broken into age categories: Celestial Guardians, Elders, Leaders, Teachers, Students, and Playmates. Some faeries teach other faeries, but all faeries teach humans. Each village is aligned with an elemental force: Earth, Air, Fire, Water, and Spirit.

BRIEF SYNOPSIS

Our story begins on a snow-drenched winter day when a young boy and a young girl, living on opposite sides of Central Park, experience their first encounter with the little people. The boy, named Henry Moore, inspires his father to take him for a sleigh ride through the park. A young faerie named Undine tags along for the ride. The girl, Linda Flavian, while walking through the park with her Irish nanny, Mary Kate, notices Undine riding on Henry's knee. Due to the subtle guidance of the faeries Henry and Linda's families form an alliance that will alter the course of human history for the better.

FAERIE AWARENESS

Once humans accept the good people into their hearts, they become inspired to guard and protect faerie interests. Once a faerie accepts a human into their heart, they guide and nurture them for the rest of their life.

Once you learn about the faerie villages of Central Park, you will never see New York City the same way again.
